OCLC Number: (OCoLC)46671479 Subject: Environmental law, International. Excerpt: . . . Introduction HISTORICAL EVIDENCE OF GENUINE CONCERN about the impact of war on the human environment can be found since the earliest civilisations. Yet, the H history of war is replete with examples of serious devastation of the enemys land and property. The relationship between peacetime human activities and the environment is in the stage of advanced public debate and scholarly attention, and much progress has been made in recent years regarding the development of appropriate instruments and institutions pertaining to the protection of the environment in peacetime. The cornerstone of modern International Environmental Law is the prohibi-tion of transfrontier pollution, according to which, States have the responsibility to ensure that activities within their jurisdiction or control do not cause damage to the environment of other States or to areas beyond national jurisdiction. In ad-dition, there is now a substantial body of international treaties laying down detailed rgimes for various environmental sectors. Recent international conflicts, such as the 1980 - 1988...
